Healing Children & Strengthening Families

During 2008 child welfare and mental health systems underwent dramatic transformation as the economy struggled. It was a year fraught with challenges and setbacks, yet the CHRIS Kids Board and staff did an amazing job keeping the focus on our mission – healing children, strengthening families and building community. Highlights of the year include:

- The CHRIS Counseling Center served over 400 people in its first full year of operation and achieved a ranking in the top 7% of Georgia's core providers of child and adolescent mental health and substance abuse services.*
- When severe cuts in state payment for residential services threatened the very existence of the CHRIS Kids group home program, a team of board and staff successfully negotiated the "360 Project" with the State. This pilot preserved our children's homes and provided CHRIS Kids the opportunity to demonstrate the importance and life-saving impact of the six bed group home model.*
- The impact of CHRIS Kids was recognized through the Bank of America Neighborhood Builders Award from the Bank of America Neighborhood Excellence Initiative.*
- We won a million dollar capital grant from the Joseph B. Whitehead Foundation, a Kresge Foundation Green Planning Grant and another anonymous foundation donation for our supportive housing project for homeless youth and youth aging out of foster care who lack family support.*

Financial strategies, intense cash management and expense reductions annualized to over $600,000 in budget savings during the year, toward the $2,429,000 in undercompensated and uncompensated assistance we provided to children and families who came to us. The Board stepped up, the staff stepped up, our donors and the community stepped up, providing $1,500,000 in charitable funding that enabled CHRIS Kids to succeed in our mission. As a result our kids and families succeeded.

In these times more than ever, CHRIS Kids relies on our donors and friends to help us strengthen families and provide children with the counseling, safety and stability they need to heal and grow into healthy, self-sufficient members of our community. Because you help us, our communities are safer and stronger. Lives that were lost, are productive and moving forward. Kids who would not have graduated from high school, do graduate and move on to jobs, technical school or college.

We hope you enjoy our annual report and join us in celebrating the successes of our children and families. Thank you.

Devan's Story

Devan was a very skinny, four foot tall African-American boy in the 6th grade, and life at home was tough. He told the case worker, "My parents fight a lot. I can hear them at night and it is really bad when my Dad is drinking. It was in December when they took us. My Mom was crying and screaming and I saw my Dad in the back of the police car. My little sister was crying and she looked scared as the policeman carried her to the police car. I walked beside them. I remember my feet were really cold. I forgot my socks. They took us to a strange place." Devan teared up as he remembered. He said, "I asked to see my Mom, but I couldn't."

Devon and his five year old sister were separated and placed in different foster care homes. For the next three years, Devon bounced around to more than 11 different foster homes. He worried about his Mom and sister. He was told that his Mom was not working her plan and he had trouble keeping up with his little sister. He was angry, depressed and his behavior was eventually labeled as 'uncontrollable.' Devon was on a path to an institution or mental hospital. He tried to commit suicide and was referred to CHRIS Kids at age 16.

Monte, the CHRIS Kids House Supervisor introduced Devon to five other boys living in the CHRIS Kids home. Monte explained to Devon that he would be going to counseling and that we would help him learn how to deal with his anger. Monte explained the daily schedule, chores and other responsibilities. Monte also told Devon, "Things are going to be a lot different for you here. I know you are going to be a great member of our family." Devon was defiant and said, "Whatever, you're not my family. Nothing is ever different and no one cares whether I am dead or not." After six months of living in a stable home, intensive therapy, medication, visits with his sister and more love and support than Devon had ever known - his outlook on life was transformed.

Devon joined the high school ROTC, built a relationship with his sister and made contact with his Mom. Devon now tells his therapist, "I realize that my Mom has her own problems, but I can still work to build a relationship with her." He continues receiving therapy and is making peace with his abusive past. Today, Devon graduated from high school and then decided to join the US Marine Corps. He is no longer an afraid, depressed, angry little boy living inside a teenager's body. He recognizes that he cannot change the past and focuses on the future. Devon is mature, successful and contributing to the community. He stays in touch with his CHRIS Kids family and is grateful. He reminds us "Your family is not just your blood; it's the people who love you and care about you. The people at CHRIS Kids really are my family."

Ms. Dziko's Story

Bernard, a ten year old African-American boy, yelled from the back of a fully loaded minivan headed for New York, "Ms. Dziko, are we there yet?" He asked the same question at least 12 times before they arrived at their destination. He had never traveled outside of Georgia and neither had the five other kids in the van with him. It was a vacation sponsored by the Junior League of Atlanta for the first children that CHRIS Kids ever served. Dziko replied, "Not there yet Bernard, but almost."

Dziko Emu has been with CHRIS Kids since 1981. She was CHRIS Kids "first employee." Back then, the office space was just a pile of papers stacked up on a coffee table in the corner of a cramped dining room. The program started in a single family home (six-bed group home) for abused and neglected kids with behavioral and emotional problems. In fact, it was challenging finding a house for the children to live in, because no neighborhood nor its members wanted "those kinds of kids" living near them. Dziko remembers hosting her first open house to ease tension with the neighbors. She says, "I invited all of them to visit the home and learn more about the children. I was like Betty Crocker and baked a cake and made lemonade – just like any good neighbor would do and that night the neighbors packed into our house."

There were so many questions that night. Dziko was exhausted trying to explain that these kids needed what all kids need - a safe, loving environment. After the open house, Dziko knew this was her calling – she and her husband Joseph dedicated their lives to CHRIS Kids. Before drifting off to sleep her husband asked, "Why can't they just understand and help us save these kids from slipping through the cracks?" Dziko replied, "I imagine that we're just not there yet Joseph, but almost."

As the next 28 years went by, Dziko poured her heart into her work and watched as CHRIS Kids grew to include additional group homes; an independent living program for teens aging out of the foster care system and homeless teens; a community program to strengthen families and help kids be able to stay in their own homes and families; and the CHRIS Counseling Center – a mental health clinic for the community. Her eyes well up when she thinks of the thousands upon thousands of children whose lives are transformed. Many of these kids are working right here in Atlanta. Some have joined the military and others are giving back through volunteerism. She is proud of all of them and holds a special place in her heart for each child. Today, CHRIS Kids helps more than 1,100 children and families each year through dozens of services and an array of programs. And, as Dziko has said so many times, "Not there yet, but almost."

The Graham Circle Project is CHRIS Kids most recent innovative project. It will provide housing and services for kids without family support who are aging out of foster care or who are homeless. The project will also provide mental health treatment and counseling to these youth and to those in need from the surrounding community. This $12.1 million dollar project in East Atlanta includes the rehabilitation of four existing apartment buildings and the construction of one new apartment building and a services building which will contain a computer lab and training rooms. It will also become the new home of the CHRIS Counseling Center.

With your help, CHRIS Kids has transformed thousands of lives and if you ask Dziko about CHRIS Kids today, she'll say, "We are still not there yet, but almost." As long as kids and families are in need, we will continue providing services.

Group Homes - 113
 Independent Living Programs - 65
 CHRIS Counseling Center - 402
 Keeping Families Together - 488
 Camp CHRIS - 25

- There are 12,000 children in Georgia's foster care system.
- Last year there were nearly 93,000 cases of abuse, neglect or maltreatment made to the Georgia Department of Family and Children Services.
- 34% of Georgia's children live in families where no parent has full-time, year-round employment.
- Each year, 165 teens with significant mental health issues age-out of Georgia's foster care system without the skills necessary to live on their own.
- 86% of Georgia youth in foster care do not graduate from high school by age 18.
- 65% of kids entering our group homes do not have an identified relative in their lives.
- National statistics predict that one-quarter of youths aging-out of foster care will become homeless and one in four males will be incarcerated.
- It costs approximately $1.7 to $2.3 million to institutionalize a person over a lifetime. Transforming a person avoids this cost and provides an ongoing return to society.

Our Programs

Keeping Families Together

The voices of our families guide our in-home work to strengthen families who are facing challenges and struggling to provide safety and care for their children. We work hard to help families improve their coping skills, to keep children in their homes whenever possible and to help families reunite with their children after children have been removed from their homes. Our goals are safety, child and family well-being, stability and prevention.

CHRIS Counseling Center

We offer assessment, counseling, therapy and psychiatric services to children and their families in metro Atlanta to help them through the difficulties, crises and challenges of life. We specialize in treatment of trauma and in helping children with severe problems, and their families, so that they can improve functioning. We have expertise in working with children who have suffered the trauma of sexual, physical, substance or emotional abuse.

Camp CHRIS

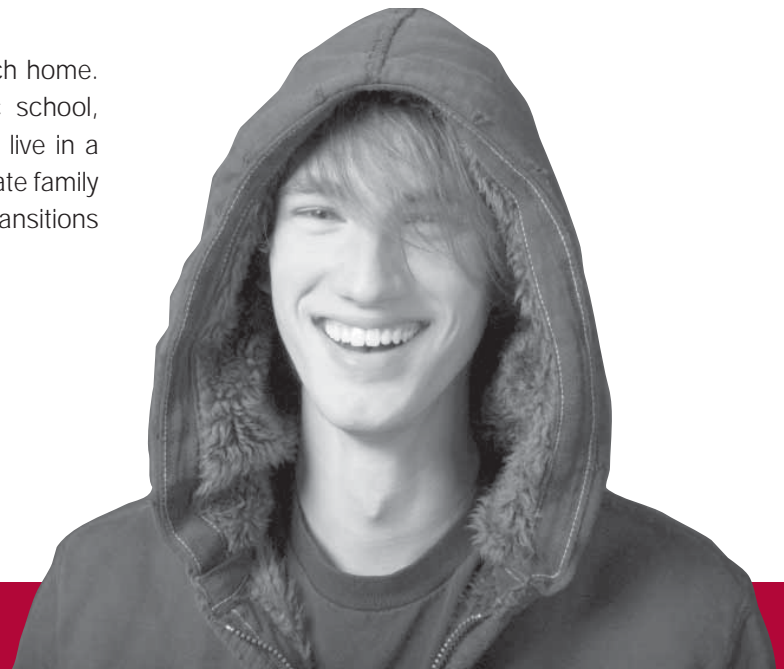

The kids who attend Camp CHRIS are not able to go to other camps because their emotional and behavioral challenges are too great. Camp CHRIS is a unique nine-week summer day-camp especially designed for these kids. Camp counselors work with each child during the summer to ensure they learn proper behaviors for dealing with anger and other emotions. Ultimately, this camp empowers kids with the knowledge and skills needed to attend a regular camp the following summer.

Group Homes

There are eight group homes with six children in each home. Kids live in a regular neighborhood, attend public school, participate in community activities and learn how to live in a family environment, sharing chores and age-appropriate family activities. We work to help kids make successful transitions back to their families, whenever possible.

Independent Living Programs

We offer an apartment community for 22 teenagers who are aging out of the foster care system or who are homeless. This program provides a safe home and a support system to help kids, who are without family support at a time of transition and crisis, make one of the most critical transitions of their lives. There is special outreach to homeless gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender teens.

Tasha's Story

The phone rings three times before Katie picks up. "CHRIS Kids can I help you?" The voice on the other end is rushed and worried, nearly panicked, "Yes, it's almost time for school to let out for summer, please tell me you have a space available at Camp CHRIS this year for my daughter, Tasha. Please?" Katie asks the woman for basic information in order to assess the family and Tasha's needs.

"Tasha is fourteen years old," Mom tells Katie. "She's been suspended from school 10 times this year for fighting and inappropriate behavior. They put her in the Department for Juvenile Justice for stealing a car, possession of marijuana and running away from home. I can't control her." Katie asks, "What about when she was little?" Mom says, "Well, we did not know about it until she was 12, but Tasha was sexually abused by her grandfather from when she was 8 years old. She started going to a counselor and they put her on medication. She is in special education classes in high school." Katie feels Mom's pain and her heart breaks for Tasha. Mom makes $22,000 a year and has three younger children. She has tried to get Tasha enrolled in other low-income or free camps but no other camp is willing to accept Tasha because of her problem behavior and her record. Katie thinks Camp CHRIS is Tasha's only hope.

Tasha's mother explains to Katie, "I work full-time. I worry so much about Tasha getting mixed up with gangs and other bad things this summer." Katie understands. She walks the completed application to the Camp Director. Tasha is accepted to Camp CHRIS in the last available space and once again, Katie is reminded of how few spaces exist to help so many families with kids who are in crisis like Tasha. This 9-week summer day camp is one of a kind in metro-Atlanta and without it, many kids would not be able to go to a camp during the summer.

Katie keeps up with Tasha's progress during Camp CHRIS. During camp, Tasha learns some appropriate outlets to release her anger. There are more than a few ups and downs, but the 1:3 counselor to camper ratio ensures each child gets the attention they need to be successful and behave appropriately. Tasha enjoys camp and visits the Georgia Aquarium, World of Coca-Cola, learns about recycling and even participates in a tour Georgia State University's campus. She learns how to express her feelings through journaling and by the end of camp, she decides that she might want to be a writer. The goal of Camp CHRIS is to teach severely emotionally and behaviorally challenged children how to function so that the following summer they will be accepted into mainstream camps and Katie thinks it is working for Tasha.

The phone rings two times before Katie picks up. "CHRIS Kids can I help you?" The voice on the other end is grateful, sincere and nearly relaxed, "Yes, it's almost time for school to start for the fall, and I want to thank you for helping my daughter, Tasha, at Camp CHRIS this year." Katie could not believe that it was the same Mom she talked to before the summer. Her voice is calm and she sounds confident. Mom goes on, "Tasha is not the same angry, out-of control girl that went to camp. We still got some work to do but your counselors have changed our life. Words can't tell you how grateful I am. I can't ever repay you for what you have done for us. And, we really appreciate Tasha's backpack and school supplies." Katie smiles. Her eyes are beginning to fill with tears. She says, "You don't have to. Please tell Tasha we are proud of her."

Community Partners

Deloitte.

The Black Employee Network hosted a Professional Development Day for our children and teens. It included conversations on education, career planning and professional opportunities in the accounting and consulting industries. Thank you!

AirTran Airways is one of our largest corporate supporters. They provide financial contributions, provide a tour of the hanger for Camp CHRIS and each year employees host a massive Holiday celebration with food, games, and a grand tour of the hangar and planes.

AutoTrader.com transformed the CHRIS Counseling Center and created the CHRIS Closet. More than 500 volunteers over three days made a safer and more comfortable space for our children and families.

PricewaterhouseCoopers donates bicycles to children in all of our programs. The children and teens use the bikes for fun and to travel to school, work and to counseling sessions.

Best Buy provided new computers for the group homes and sent the Geek Squad to install them. They also provided a grant to support children in our programs.

CarMax volunteers helped at Camp CHRIS by throwing a big BBQ and dance contest. The CarMax Foundation also provided a grant to help with summer costs.

Cartier hosted the Seasons of Love cast party and event. They allowed special access to the store and volunteers for our event.

Home Depot volunteers installed drywall and painted the CHRIS Closet and also volunteered to assist families with gift wrapping during the holidays. The Home Depot Innovation Center provided Holiday decorations for all of the community families and for our group homes.

Huron Consulting provided volunteers for our thanksgiving feast. They brought a basketball hoop and food baskets for our community families and children in our residential programs.

Thank you for coordinating fundraising events and providing a matching gift each year to help our gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender children and teens.

Atlanta Hawks Foundation ensured that kids were able to attend camp. The Atlanta Hawks Foundation is dedicated to improving the quality of life of Georgia youth by inspiring them to develop a passion for learning and a commitment to physical fitness and recreation.

Junior League of DeKalb teaches the children and teens etiquette classes. They also provide many volunteers for all our special events.

We appreciate Georgia-Pacific's marketing consulting and graphics and printing services, and all the volunteers that help with our printing needs.

Southern Voice and David Magazine highlight all of our special events and include stories and advertisements for us.

Every month the store donates clothing for kids in our programs. This donation makes our young boys and men look great for job interviews, school and special events.

Tony Conway contributes his time and energy making our event simply fabulous. He and his dedicated staff are committed and we are proud to partner with them.

Members collect hundreds of toys, gift cards and other items during the Holidays. We would not be able to provide for all the children and families without them.

The Charity Guild of St. Ives collected hygiene products, towels, sheets, games and laundry baskets for our teenagers.

St. Luke's Presbyterian Church Members collect gift cards, clothing and wish list items for the kids. They wrap the items and candy in beautiful Easter baskets.

For the Kid in All of Us This 100% volunteer run organization collects backpacks and toys for our children. We are grateful for "Backpack in the Park" and "Toy Party"!

Mission

CHRIS is an acronym for Creativity, Honor, Respect, Integrity and Safety; the values that guide us.

Creativity

We are innovative agents of change, identifying new solutions and approaches to the challenges our “kids” face.

Honor

We celebrate each person’s individuality and the gifts of diversity.

Respect

We honor one another, treat each other with kindness and work together as a team. By teaching accountability and responsibility, we strive to break the intergenerational cycle of poverty and abuse.

Integrity

We are transparent, trustworthy and accountable. Always.

Safety

We create consistent environments, free from danger, in which people have the opportunity to grow and achieve their full potential.

Healing Children.
Strengthening Families.
Building Community.
